Scientific Activity:

Professor T. Ruggeri is author of 214 publications, among which there are 3 books and 3 monographs. The researches developed are devoted to several Mathematical Physics problems, and in particular non-linear wave propagation problems for hyperbolic systems and thermo mechanics of continuous media (classical and relativistic).

In the first field he has produced original contributions concerning the symmetrisation of hyperbolic systems of balance laws with convex entropy density and in the theory of acceleration and shock waves. In the field of non-equilibrium thermodynamics he has been one of the founders of the field of modern Extended Thermodynamics and has written, jointly with Ingo Mueller, the well know book Rational Extended Thermodynamics (Springer-Verlag, 1988, 2nd edition). Recent papers are devoted to a new approach of non-equilibrium thermodynamics that include polytropic gas, moderate dense gas and mixture of gas. These results are collected in a recent book written jointly with Masaru Sugiyama Rational Extended Thermodynamics beyond Monatomic Gas (Springer-Verlag, 2015).
